Nike Contact Notes
Tracee Cheng — project management roles.

Restructuring and redesigning vision — it is ready to release and what the pipeline is. Vancouver, Orlando, and Romania. She was to get all 3 teams merged together, restructure, figure out savings of time and $; talk to internal managers about needs and benchmark. Once this was complete, quarterly she defined goals, efficiency, customer satisfaction — communicate to management and customer and measured her teams against this. SW release for all sports titles — football, soccer, basketball, hockey — any sport that EA had game for, she managed the release. Has managed a team; in 5 years she would like to manage fewer people, but hope they are higher level professionals. Managing managers for a while. Products — would like to manage a portfolio at some point —market, revenue, benefits of products.

EA — she got accepted to the Stanford business program finishing her program. It ends in June. She is ready to start a new program. She is talking to EA right now about future roles.

She wants to leverage her previous experience, but she wants to use her education. She wants a solid culture and good environment. She would like to move into product management — would like to get close to customer; what are pain points; how can we do better from a customer standpoint; customer loyalty.

Timing: June 16 is her graduation date. She is in talks with other companies.

Relocation: moving to Portland. She loves it here.

Salary: before coming to Stanford - $120-130K including base, bonus, etc. She would be hoping for lateral at least. Most important to her is role and it ' s growth potential.
